Zoo Adventure

A visit to the zoo is always an unforgettable experience for animal lovers young and old. What better opportunity can there be to see animals from every corner of the globe, to watch them play and eat, and observe their behaviour? Zoos nowadays are entrusted more than ever before with the responsibility of preserving endangered species, of providing a backup for the work of game reserves, and promoting the kind of scientific research which will help in the protection and conservation of our environment. The series allows us to experience at first hand the problems of breeding and looking after animals in zoos, and reports on successes and new research objectives. Each episode presents a zoo and its animal residents. We accompany the latest generation of visitors to the zoo, where biology and ecology lessons are much more lively and interesting than in the classroom.
