The Last Days in the Life of Vincent Van Gogh | 00 0138

One hundred years ago, the Dutch artist living in Arles in the south of France was unable to sell a single picture. Today, Vincent van Gogh's pictures sell for millions. He painted obsessively, producing works such as the "Sunflowers", the "Irises" and the "Flower Garden". We look back at the last days in the life of this great artist.

A View from the North – Edvard Munch in Germany | 00 0905

Edvard Munch was interested in the human being, human psychology and human fate. Death, anxiety, and unbridled desire were all fundamental experiences of human existence to which the Norwegian artist gave expression in his paintings and prints. This feature records the essential milestones and the triumphs and defeats of Munch in Germany.
